

Respected Principal, Respected Teachers and My Dear Fellow Students

Today is a very emotional moment for us as it is the last day of our school and after this event most of us will choose different parts in life. This event is organized annually, giving an opportunity to each of us to thank each other, exchange contact details and promise with each other to stay connected as long as possible, but I am a bit luckier to get an opportunity on behalf of all students to thank our teachers.

This is a special occasion for me, and I am going to utilize this platform to thank the entire school for nurturing us with so much love and care. I would especially like to thank the teachers who have worked so hard towards educating us and transforming us from a raw to a mature and sensible individual. I know my life is going to change soon as I am moving to a new world entirely, where I will have to make my own decisions and there will be none to guide me with so much of intensity as my teachers have guided me so far. But I am sure, the lessons that I have learnt from my teachers here would remain forever with me.

A special thanks to the Principal, Mr. Cyrus, who trusted us and supported us in every way he can. For me, this school is like my first home as I have spent most of the hours of my day here. Every teacher I met here is friendly and warm. When we are confused, they give us encouragement, when we are frustrated, they give us enlightenment. This entire school is a treasure of knowledge for me and I have cherished every moment of care, attention, blessing and teaching I have got from here.

Once again, thank you to all my teachers. Thank you, Stott's College.
